If you want to improve your FUT squad builder skills, it's the logical choice. There are times when I just use a specific MP3 music track, either as a ringtone or as notification alert. On Android in general, this is not a difficult thing to achieve. But, on some of Samsung's recent high-end releases, it's almost a walk in the park. Samsung's best-known smartphones do have a long list of standard ringtones and notifications to choose from. You choose one of them until you get tired of it – and if you do, and if you've run through all the tones on the list, what else do you have to do? Of course, you add your own MP3 to the list. This guide will show you how to set up an MP3 file as a custom ring tone or notification sound on certain high-end Samsung phones. (You also like our video tutorial at the end of this post.) RequirementsThe instructions in this guide are known to work on The Galaxy Note, Galaxy Note 2 and Galaxy S3 run stock TouchWiz with Android 4.1 Jelly Bean or later; these can also work on other Samsung phones that I haven't tested. Root access on the phone is also not necessary. This manual still works even if your phone is rooted, provided your phone runs at least Android 4.1 with Stock TouchWiz. The procedures can be a little different if your phone is running a custom ROM or another version of Android. The MP3 files you want to use should already be on your phone. There are many ways to copy MP3 files to your phone, but I won't be covering it here. Set custom MP3 ringtoneVia settings To set up an MP3 file for use as a custom ringtone system-wide, do the following:Copying the MP3 files to your phone. The stock Samsung Music Player app should be able to see the files. Make sure the songs are displayed in the Music Player app. Go to Ringtones Settings > Sound > Device. You'll see a list of the phone's standard ringtones. Tap the Add button to start the media management app. If your phone has multiple file/media management apps, select Music Player in the pop-up box. You'll see a list of music files stored on your phone. Select one and tap Done. Your selected MP3 track is now your custom ring tone. Repeat the same process to add more custom ringtones to the default ringtones list. Through Music PlayerYou, you can also set up a system-wide custom MP3 ringtone through the Music Player app. Playing the desired MP3 music file in the Music Player app. While playing the file, tap the Capacitive Menu button to open the Options menu. Select Set As and choose whether to set the ring tone as a ring tone, ringtone, or alarm tone. Custom MP3 ring tone for specific contact Setup a personalized ring tone for each contact is also possible in the Contacts app inventory. Start the Contacts app and open a contact info page. Scroll down until you see the Ringtones section. Tap it and a three-option dialogue box appears: Use default - use default ringtones - select a default ringtone for the contactGo to My Files - open the My Files app to select a ringtone file Select a ringtone file Select Go to My Files and find the MP3 file you want. Select the MP3 file, and then tap Done. Setting MP3 as custom notification toneUnlike with ringtones that don't immediately set you an MP3 file as a notification alert from the Settings menu or through the Music Player app. You must manually set up the music file to use it as a notification alert. Here's how to do it: Copy the necessary MP3 files to your phone. Launch a file manager app (for example, the My app ES explorer and the like) on your phone. Find the MP3 file you want and copy it to the Notifications folder in the phone's internal storage (usually /storage/sdcard0). If you don't see the Notifications folder, create it manually before copying the MP3 file in it. Go back to the main home screen and open the Settings menu. Go to Sound Notifications > Device and select the newly added file on the list. Using Ringtone Manager apps Another way to set up custom notifications or ringtones is through a ringtone manager or ringtone editor app. One of my favorites is the Ringtone Maker app. With this app, you can crop a music file and set it as a ringtone or notification. Install the ringtone Maker app on your phone for free from the Google Play Store. Launch the app. All your music files will appear in the list. Find the music file you want. Tap the green button next to the name of the file you want to edit. The Options menu appears. Select Edit to edit the music file. On the next screen, slide the sliders to define a cropping area. You also set fade-in/out effects or adjust volume levels. With the app you also mix a cropped file into another MP3 track. If you're happy with the changes, tap the Save button. Choose whether you want to save the file as a ringing, notification, alarm, or music. Also, give a file name for your edited file. Tap Save. Your newly created music can now be used as a ring tone or notification on your phone.
